1966 SCHOLARSHIPS ANNOUNCED

Five graduate scholarships for training in library science were recently awarded by the State Library Board to Doris Brown, Gail Campbell, John Landrum, Libby Patton, and Sara Jane Urban.

Miss Brown is a spring, 1966, graduate of Erskine College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Banks M. Brown of Huntersville, North Carolina. While at Erskine, Miss Brown was a student assistant in the college library and also worked as a library intern at the Greenville County Library during the summer of 1965. Sponsored by the Spartanburg County Library, she will enter the Graduate School of Library Service, Rutgers University, in June and return to Spartanburg after her graduate work to serve the library as assistant reference librarian.

Graduating from Central Wesleyan College in May, 1965, Miss Campbell has been employed by the Florence County Library since September of last year, serving as bookmobile assistant and as acting head of the extension department. Last summer she worked as an intern at the Anderson County Library. She is a native of Tennessee, the daughter of Mrs. William H. Campbell of Newport. Upon completion of her graduate work at Louisiana State University's Library School, Miss Campbell, who is sponsored by Florence County Library, will be Head of Technical Services.

Mr. Landrum, sponsored by the State Library Board, is the son of Mrs. Louise H. Landrum of Greenwood, South Carolina. A Dean's List student, he is a spring, 1966, graduate of Erskine, and was a 1964 summer intern at the Greenwood City and County Public Library. Mr. Landrum will enter the Graduate School of Library Science, University of North Carolina, in June and will return to the State Library Board as reference assistant.

Also sponsored by the Florence County Library, Miss Patton is a June graduate of Columbia College. She was a Dean's List student while in college and a library intern last summer at the ABBE Regional Library. Miss Patton enters the University of Michigan's Department of Library Science this month.

Another former intern at ABBE, Miss Urban is sponsored by the Greenwood City and County Public Library. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Urban of Aiken, South Carolina, and is a June graduate of Queens College in Charlotte. A native of Washington, Miss Urban will enter the School of Librarianship at the University of Washington in June.

LIBRARY DEVELOPMENT IN S. C. APPALACHIA AREA

The Appalachian Advisory Committee has requested that the State Library Board prepare a plan for the development of libraries in the six South Carolina counties: Anderson, Cherokee, Greenville, Pickens, Oconee, and Spartanburg, in the Appalachian area. It was stipulated that the plan cover needs for 5 years with an estimate of funds needed and projected sources of funds.

On May 27 in Greenville, the State Library Board is calling a meeting of representatives from the counties concerned to obtain their assistance and advice in formulating future plans. Chairmen of county library boards or their delegates and county librarians of the counties involved as well as interested citizens of the area have been invited to the meeting.

GUIDE TO S. C. RESEARCH MATERIALS

Under the sponsorship of the State Library Board, Dr. John H. Moore, formerly Professor of History at Winthrop College and now at Georgia State University, Athens, has completed a guide to research materials in South Carolina. At its 1965 conference, the South Carolina Library Association voted to co-sponsor the publication of the guide. Publishing arrangements have been made with the University of South Carolina Press.

The following introduction by Estellene P. Walker, Director, S. C. State Library Board, explains the scope of the guide.

"A Guide to Research Materials in South Carolina is another step in the State Library Board's program to improve reference service at both state and local levels and marks an advancement towards the realization of a coordinated network of library service over the state. The listings of specialized library resources, holdings of newspapers, periodical collections, and subject collections will prove to be an indispensable aid toward bringing the collections of libraries in South Carolina into a total network of library service.

"The Guide represents a first attempt in this state to produce a bibliographic tool through which the specialized reader can locate available subject material and individual periodical and newspaper titles held by all South Carolina libraries. Included in the Guide and of noteworthy importance are the guide to the historical and genealogical collections in the South Caroliniana Library at the University of South Carolina and a guide to the holdings of the South Carolina Archives Department. These two individual listings are the most extensive and complete compilations published which outline the collections of the state's official archival records as well as the state's most significant collection of historical materials.

Part II of the Guide provides an excellent union list of serials for South Carolina. It includes periodical collections begun in libraries prior to 1941 and should prove to be invaluable in locating much worthwhile contemporary information and commentary published in journals, serials, and magazines, back issues of which are maintained by libraries throughout the state.

The task of compiling the vast amount of information contained in the Guide fell on the shoulders of Dr. Moore, and he has done a creditable job. Numerous librarians in public, special, and college and university libraries cooperated with Dr. Moore in making this index and bibliographical tool a reality. The Guide is a credit not only to Dr. Moore's assiduousness and competence, but to those librarians, both past and present, who through the years and in diverse libraries over the state collected and developed the materials listed in this compilation.

The availability of this important study as a published volume is the result of a cooperative project of the South Carolina State Library Board and of the South Carolina Library Association, both of which have shared equally in the cost of bringing the Guide into print.

ALA PRE-CONFERENCE WORKSHOPS AND INSTITUTES

Books for Adults Beginning to Read

A workshop to assist librarians, publishers, and adult educators to develop practical and useful collections for the adult of limited reading ability will be conducted July 8-9 at the Statler Hilton Hotel. Betty E. Callaham, Director of Field Services, will represent the State Library Board. An SLB scholarship to the workshop has been granted to Mary Aiken, Librarian, Pickens County Library.

Library Equipment Institute

State Library Board grants have been awarded to three trustees, Mrs. W. L. Norton, Oconee County Library; J. C. Bennett, Horry County Memorial Library; and Robert M. Hollings, Charleston County Library, to attend a Library Equipment Institute on July 7-9 at the Statler Hilton.

ALTA Workshop

The American Library Trustee Association is sponsoring a workshop, "Reaching Out with Books," July 9. Mr. Bennett, Mr. Hollings, and Mrs. Norton will attend this workshop also.

Young Adult Services Workshop

Madeleine Mosimann, Children's Librarian, Charleston County Library, and Sara Henry, Children's Librarian, Spartanburg County Library, have been granted State Library Board scholarships to attend a pre-conference workshop on reaching and understanding young adults from disadvantaged backgrounds. The workshop will be held at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, July 8 - July 10.

YORK COUNTY LIBRARY CONSOLIDATION PASSES

On May 3, York County's five separate library boards unanimously approved and sent to the County Delegation a bill for the establishment of a consolidated county-wide library system to begin on July 1. The bill, introduced by York County's Senator Robert W. Hayes, was approved by both houses of the legislature and now awaits the governor's signature.

This action signalled the climax of over two weeks of intensive study by the individual boards from Rock Hill, Fort Mill, Kings Mountain Township (Clover), York, and the County Rural Library, as to whether they should join the county-wide system. Members of the State Library Board met with the boards to work out the framework of the new system.

As provided in the bill, the county system will be governed by a nine-member board of trustees. Eight of these will be appointed from the four school districts in the county by the respective school boards on the recommendation of the existing local library boards on the basis of one member per 10,000 population. The ninth member will be appointed by the County Board of Education from the county-at-large. All members will serve four-year staggered terms with no one serving more than two consecutive terms.

The bill calls for a two-mill county-wide tax levy to support the unified system. The millage is expected to bring in a total of $67,956 during the first year. With state grants, the total first-year budget has been estimated at $95,000.

During the first three years of operation, the York County Library system will participate in the State Library Board's County Demonstration Program. Three other counties in the state, Anderson, Beaufort, and Greenville, previously participated in this program, and Florence will presently begin its third and final year, making York the fifth County Demonstration Library in the state.

DEWEY DECIMAL AIDS

A colorfully illustrated poster telling the story of the Dewey classification system and matching dial-guide wheels are available from NLW headquarters. Posters: 50¢ each; wheels: units of 20, $2.00. Address: The National Library Week Program, One Park Avenue, New York, New York 10016.

SUMTER DISCONTINUES BOOKMOBILE SERVICE TO SCHOOLS

Upon the recommendation of a Special committee of the Sumter County Library Board and the Librarian, the Sumter County Library will discontinue its school bookmobile service with the end of the current academic year. It was learned that the county schools now have roughly ten books per student whereas the rural population served by the communities Service Bookmobile can claim less than one book per capita. Service to the schools, therefore, seemed no longer justified.

The release of funds and energy resulting from the discontinuence of the school service will be used to improve the County Extension program.

PICKENS LIBRARY BUILDING TO EXPAND

Plans for a $100,000 improvement of the Easley Public Library building have been announced. The cost provides for expansion of the present facility and additional equipment. The building now owned by the Easley Library Association will be transferred to the Easley County Library Board and will continue to serve as headquarters for the county system.

Applications for construction grants have been made to the State Library Board and the Aid to Appalachia Program

ABBE HOLDS EIGHTH IN-SERVICE TRAINING PROGRAM

Branch librarians from ten of the twelve branches in the Aiken-Bamberg-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library met at the Regional headquarters on May 13 for the eighth annual In-Service Training session. The theme for this year was "Know Your Library—Its Function and Purpose" with emphasis on better service to the public and better use of library materials.

Those participating on the program were Josephine Crouch, Regional Library Director; Margie Herron, Head of the Extension Department; Mrs. Maurine Lackey, Supervisor of Branches; and Norma Lightsey, State Library Board.

REGIONAL LIBRARIAN FOR THE BLIND TO RETIRE

Evelyn R. Peeler, Librarian of the North Carolina-South Carolina Regional Library for the Blind, will retire from her post on July 1. Miss Peeler has been instrumental in providing good library service for blind readers of the region. To more than 700 South Carolina talking book readers who think of her as a personal friend, Miss Peeler's retirement will be genuine loss. She will be succeeded by Mrs. Marion Leith of the North Carolina State Library staff.

OMISSIONS DEPARTMENT

The following members were inadvertently omitted from the Committee on Standards for South Carolina Public Libraries in the May issue of News for Public Libraries: Mrs. Vernon Brunson, Allendale; Mrs. L. B. Morley, Walterboro; and Chapman Milling, Jr., Sumter.

READING LIST FOR HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS

The 1966-67 reading list for Home Demonstration Clubs is now in preparation. Please send requests stating the number of lists needed by your library to the State Library Board by June 15.

KUDOS FOR SLB

The following was received by Estellene P. Walker, Director, State Library Board, from Charles E. Stow, Librarian, Greenville County Library, and is reproduced with thanks to Mr. Stow.

"This is a letter of appreciation to you and the members of your staff for the wonderful help and cooperation we have received in the various phases of LSCA.

"We are most grateful to you for the financial help. We scarcely need to assure you that it has meant a very great deal to us in our efforts to make better library service available to our patrons. As a result, we have been able to offer many books and services which would otherwise not have been possible.

"The cooperation we have received from you and your staff in helping us take advantage of the various programs is also gratefully acknowledged. Without this help, I am sure we would have missed out on projects.

"I should also like to say that I hope you have received from us the cooperation you have a right to expect, and I do hope that we have not added to the burden the State Library Board carries in the administration of the various LSCA projects.

"I hope you will express to your staff the appreciation of all of us at the Greenville County Library."

JUNE PUBLICITY POINTER

Do you have a "before and after" situation at your library? Have you brightened a corner, received a gift that shows, changed the arrangement of materials to make them easier to use, painted, air-conditioned, planted shrubs or flowers, turned the old store-room into something else? Then there's a new story waiting to be told. And a picture waiting to be taken.

NON-FICTION INVOICES DUE JUNE 15

Librarians participating in the non-fiction extension of the Standard Adult Fiction Project are reminded that invoices are due June 15. For all other 1965-66 projects the deadline for submitting invoices is June 1.

ANNOTATED CARDS FOR CHILDREN'S LITERATURE

The Library of Congress has added still another to its many card services by offering an annotated catalog card for children's literature. The card provides a short, clear annotation, an application of the Library of Congress subject heading system specifically designed for a card catalog of children's literature, an abridged Dewey number, and overprinted headings. The cards are sold in (3sat) sets with a minimum of six cards; two extra main cards are supplied and may be used as the librarian desires. At the present time, cards are available for current 1966 imprints. As the program develops, it is expected that all children's books in print will be covered.

A set of annotated cards sells at the rate of 27 cents per set when ordered by author and title; 22 cents a set when ordered by card number; and 20 cents a set by standing order. Standing order subscriptions will be accepted for current titles only, unless the subscriber specifies all AC (annotated card) sets printed. A salmon-colored slip printed in black ink is used to order sets of annotated cards, and a supply of these may be obtained upon request to the Card Division, Library of Congress, Building 159, Navy Yard Annex, Washington, D. C. 29541. Libraries using their own multiple order form must indicate on the LC card order slip that "AC card sets are wanted, if available."

It is expected that some wholesale book distributors will undertake to distribute sets of these cards with the books they sell. Potential users of the LC card service are therefore advised to consult their book suppliers before placing AC card orders with the Card Division.

All questions concerning this service should be addressed to the Chief of the Card Division, Library of Congress.

YOUR PROBLEMS

by Anne Library

Dear Anne:

For the past 20 years we have had an item in our budget to cover travel expenses for one or more members of the staff to attend ALA and regional association meetings. The funds are included in the budget with the idea that attendance at these meetings will benefit the library, but in the past few years I have wondered if this purpose is accomplished. The annual conference of the American Library Association has become so enormous and the meetings are so scattered, that I do not believe our delegates have gotten much out of it. Some of the programs which they would have enjoyed have been held in connection with meal meetings, the price of which has been far beyond the limits of their expense account. In the Section meetings the same people appear on the programs with monotonous regularity. I am wondering if we would not be well advised to use this travel money for something other than convention attendance. I would appreciate your thoughts on this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Seriously Concerned

Dear Seriously Concerned:

Everybody ought to go to Barnum and Bailey's once and certainly every professional librarian should have an opportunity to attend the annual conference of the American Library Association at least one time. After that, the benefits of such attendance will vary with the individual. Some people seem to get enough out of personal contacts made during the session to make the expensive trip worthwhile, but others get little more from the meeting than a sense of confusion and a buzz of controversy. You might be wise to experiment and use your convention money another year to send some of the members of the staff on a visit to an outstanding library system. With proper preparation for the visit, they should get far more benefit than from attending an annual ALA conference. The institutes held by the graduate library school at the University of Chicago each summer would also be an interesting alternate to ALA attendance. Throughout the year workshops, institutes, and conferences on a smaller scale and on specific problems are worth considering for staff attendance. You might try some of them all and see which one works best for your library.

A SLIGHT CASE OF OVERDUES

Police searching a Tucson apartment for a man wanted on a forgery charge didn't get their man, but they did come up with an unexpected bonanza.

Officers found stacks of over-due library books and phonograph records. They said the fines due the public library could add a total of $1,000 to city coffers if the apartment tenant is found.

Public Relations SUCCESS STORY

This monthly feature is designed to show you an outstanding example of publicity or public relations done by a South Carolina public library, and to tell you how it came about.

From the S. C. State Library Board

Does your library have a well-planned publicity program? It should! Good library publicity can create interest and boost attendance.

A case in point is the Aiken-Bamberg-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library. Miss Carrie Gene Ashley, Coordinator of Adult Services for the library has made thorough use of the area's newspapers to keep library patrons informed and in touch with what's happening. Each weekly paper carries a book review, a list of books recently added to the library's collection, or news of a recent event at the library. These stories are carried by papers in Aiken, Barnwell, Bamberg, and Edgefield -- each a community served by the regional library.

And, Miss Ashley reports, she makes full use of the surrounding radio stations as well. Her radio coverage ranges from a daily program for book reviews on one station to a full schedule of spot announcements on others. Miss Ashley also coordinates her library displays to the weekly newspaper stories.

Well-planned publicity, like ABBE's, can really spark community interest and raise circulation!

Moral: Make use of your local newspapers, radio stations, and television stations. Coordinate their efforts to reinforce their effectiveness. Let your patrons know what their library has to offer, and watch the interest grow!

News for Public Libraries is published monthly by the South Carolina State Library Board, Estellene P. Walker, Director, 1001 Main Street, Columbia, South Carolina 29201. Nancy C. Blair, Editor; Joe Camp, Printer.
